A plant in Kent, Wash., owned by a Waseca, Minn., firm, may occupy Kellwood

E.F. Johnson will open plant to manufacture mobile phones

TWIN FALLS — The E.F. Johnson Co., an electronics manufacturing firm from Waseca, Minn., has purchased the vacant Kellwood hoistery factory in Twin Falls and plans to open it again in early 1983.

A formal announcement of the purchase is expected Monday, but reports of the purchase have been circulating for weeks, culminating a two-year search for an industrial tenant for the Kellwood structure, off Washington Street South.

The name of the purchaser has been a closely held secret while Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce officials maneuvered the buyer and seller through delicate negotiations in the past several months.

The name was inadvertently leaked Friday by Gov. John Evans after a meeting with College of Southern Idaho officials. Local business officials reacted angrily to Evans' leak, but the governor later apologized, saying he did not intend any slight to the largely local effort to lure E.F. Johnson to Twin Falls.

The company, which had almost $60 million in sales during 1981, plans to use the former panty hose manufacturing plant to produce a new generation of mobile phones using cellular technology — that industry analysts say have almost unlimited potential for growth during the decade.

Richard E. Horner, the president and chairman of the company, is expected to be in Twin Falls on Monday to formally announce the purchase.

His company's plans for the facility apparently call for closing an E.F. Johnson subsidiary in Kent, Wash., the U.S. Communications Corp.

Earlier reports about the company's plans for Twin Falls said that 20 to 30 employees of the corporation might move to Twin Falls. Whether this employee would come from E.F. Johnson or from the subsidiary was not disclosed.

The company reportedly plans to hire 30 to 70 employees locally when it begins production, tentatively scheduled for early next year.

By the end of 1983, the company might employ 200 people, and within five years it could employ 400 to 1,000, sources connected with sales have said.

Elkhorn hotel will close in 2 weeks

By STEPHANIE SCHOROW
Times-News writer

SUN VALLEY — Elkhorn Village Inn will close in two weeks, following Friday's resolution of foreclosure proceedings against the resort.

The announcement of the impending closure, which could put 75 people out of work, was made Friday morning by the owners of the troubled resort.

Control of the Elkhorn hotel, condominium complex and associated properties has reverted to the resort's original developer, Elkhorn at Sun Valley, a joint venture between Johns-Manville Idaho Inc. and Dollar Mountain Co., a subsidiary of the Sun Valley Co.

In mid-December, Elkhorn at Sun Valley initiated foreclosure proceedings against Elkhorn Associates Ltd., which purchased the resort in 1976.

The developer charged that Elkhorn Associates, then a partnership including former Sun Valley Mayor Dick Heckmann and Jack D. Franks, a Palm Springs, Calif., businessman, had failed to pay the money owed on the resort's sale.

Fifth District Court Judge Douglas Kramer placed the hotel and associated properties into a receivership with Larry May Co. of Boise, a hotel management firm. On June 2, the two companies reached an out-of-court settlement. On Friday, Kramer terminated the receivership.

John Consigli of Johns-Manville said that while the 146-room hotel will be closed "until further notice" after July 26, other Elkhorn operations — such as its property management and condominium rental program — will continue to run.

The hotel lobby will remain open for check-in and condominium information. Also unaffected are the resort's pool and tennis courts, the golf course and the riding stables, according to Karl Bick, the vice president of Elkhorn Realty and Development Co., which manages Johns-Manville's Elkhorn properties.

The eight-story-on-the Elkhorn mall operate independently of the resort, under a leasing arrangement, and they could remain open, according to Don Knickrehm of Boise, an attorney for Johns-Manville. However, he said, two hotel-owned restaurants and the hotel's sports center will close.

Bick estimates that 75 of the resort's 140 employees may be out of work by the end of July.

Sun Valley City administrator Jack Brown said the hotel's closure will "certainly" affect the city's economy, but he was not sure Friday how great it would be. The most immediate effect will be lower revenues from the city's local-option tax, he said.

However, Brown said the loss of Elkhorn's 146 beds probably will not affect substantially the numbers of tourists seeking accommodations in the Sun Valley-Ketchum area.

Bick said persons holding reservations at Elkhorn Village Inn after July 26 will be contacted and accommodated through the resort's rental condominiums, or through referrals to other facilities.

"We certainly hope it (the closure) will not have a significant adverse effect," Knickrehm said.

He would not discuss details of the June 2 settlement. "I can only tell you as a consequence of the settlement, the Elkhorn Associates has deeded the property to the joint venture (Elkhorn at Sun Valley)."

Franks, who has a Sun Valley residence, could not be reached Friday for comment. Heckmann, who

At least 149 people die in New Orleans crash

Air disaster second worst in U.S. history

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — A Pan American World Airways jet crashed and exploded in a residential area on takeoff Friday in a fierce thunderstorm, killing all 143 passengers and at least six on the ground in the second worst airplane disaster in U.S. history.

"There are no survivors," said medical technician Donna Viekner of the 143 passengers and crew aboard Pan Am flight 759 from Miami. She said the remains of bodies were strewn around the crash site, about 2 miles from New Orleans' International Airport in suburban Kenner.

At least six people were reported killed on the ground, where authorities were conducting a house-to-house search for more victims. One man said a woman and her three young children, who lived across the street from him, were cremated by the inferno.

A 16-month-old girl, dubbed the "miracle baby," was found alive in the demolished living room of her home, the jet's huge wheels resting only about 10 yards away from her. Her mother and 4-year-old sister were among the dead.

Eight people were treated at East Jefferson Hospital in nearby Metairie, including two children listed in critical condition and a woman in serious condition.

"Everyone on the plane was killed," said George Rutledge, a Federal Aviation Administration spokesman in Fort Worth, Texas. "One of our inspectors down there said they had counted 149 bodies. So some of them are on the ground."

The plane, a narrow-body Boeing 727-200, started its trip in Miami and was packed with vacationers en route to Las Vegas. The airline said only 10 of the passengers had booked through to the plane's final stop, San Diego.

A spokesman for the FAA said the crash occurred at 3:11 p.m. MDT, two minutes after takeoff.

"There are bodies everywhere," said UPI photographer Jerry Lodriguss. "They still have bodies in the seats of the wreckage."

A reporter at the scene said: "It is a disaster area. It is like a tornado went through there."

Emergency generators and lighting equipment were trucked in to help in the recovery of bodies because a six-square-block area had no power. As a precaution, police evacuated residents of a seven-block area around the primary crash site.

"We don't know the casualties that might be on the ground," said Al Sella, director of Fire and Emergency Services for Jefferson Parish. "We are just marshalling our forces to go in and see."

Sella said rescuers first "had to handle the fire situation."

The plane filled its tanks before taking off, Sella said. A Boeing 727-200 holds 8,090 gallons of jet fuel.

Today's briefing Syria won't accept PLO

United Press International

Syria Friday refused to provide sanctuary for PLO guerrillas trapped in West Beirut and with Israelis and Palestinians locked in their fiercest battle in the 3-week siege of the Moslem sector, the PLO said it had little hope for a peace settlement.

Syria, the country mentioned as the most likely refuge for the 6,000 Palestinian guerrillas trapped in West Beirut said flatly it will "not accept" the homeless fighters.

"In no way will it accept their moving from Lebanon to Syria under these circumstances," said a government spokesman in Damascus quoted by Syria's state-run news agency SANA.

A ranking Palestinian official accused U.S. special envoy Philip Habib of trying to "escape" from agreements concluded and said the PLO was suspending peace talks.

Another top PLO leader indicated his people would keep talking, but said they saw little chance of forestalling an all-out invasion of West Beirut.

Abu Iyad, PLO chairman Yasser Arafat's No. 2 man, dismissed reports that a settlement was at hand.

"Where do they get their optimism from?" he asked.

In an interview with UPI. He indicated, however, that talks were continuing, saying discussions of multinational peacekeeping forces were "being negotiated."

As he spoke in a basement office, Israeli shelling rattled doors and shook ceilings. The intensive fighting forced terrified civilians to seek refuge in overcrowded shelters.

Earlier in the day, Hani al Hassan, chief political adviser to PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat, said the Palestinians were suspending peace negotiations, and accused U.S. negotiator Habib of reneging on earlier agreements.

Syria's rejection of the Palestinians, viewed as a serious setback to peace talks, came as U.S. Assistant Undersecretary of State Morris Draper arrived in Damascus from Beirut. There was no official word on the exact purpose of the visit.

Whitehouse officials, with President Reagan in California, said earlier there might be a "breakthrough" soon in the complicated U.S. mediation efforts and that Habib "is going to pull it off."

A senior PLO official had said an agreement might be reached this weekend. But the new developments, combined with the heavy fighting, appeared to dampen hopes that an agreement was near.

Schreuder sentenced to life

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Marc Francis Schreuder, 21, was sentenced to a maximum life term Friday for shooting his wealthy grandfather to death to protect his New York, socialist mother's inheritance.

Judge James Sawaya, who found Schreuder guilty of second-degree murder at the end of a non-jury trial, sentenced him to five-to-life, and, saying he found "no room for leniency," added another six years and fined Schreuder $10,000 — also the maximum allowed by law.

The additional five-year and one-year consecutive sentences added to the life term are allowed under Utah law for use of a firearm during commission of a crime.

Sawaya also said he saw "no evidence of any remorse" on the part of the defendant — and that if he had not been "a reasonable doubt as to his motive" Schreuder could have faced execution.

Sawaya found Schreuder guilty Tuesday in the 1976 slaying. He had originally been charged with capital homicide, which carries the death penalty in Utah.

Arraignments set for 4 youths

BOISE (UPI) — Separate arraignment dates were set Friday for four youths charged in the Memorial Day for youths slaying of fellow Ada County jail inmate Christopher Peterman.

Court officials said the juveniles, who face adult first-degree murder charges and possible death sentences in Peterman's death, would stand trial separately.

Richard Engle was scheduled to appear for arraignment on Monday, while Randall McKewen and Andy Anderson were scheduled for their arraignment on Wednesday, officials said.

Sean Matthews' arraignment was set for next Friday, they said.

Charges against a fifth defendant in the case, Joseph Krahn, 17, were dismissed during a preliminary magistrate's hearing last week due to insufficient evidence. Krahn then was called to testify, making him a key witness in the case against his former cellmates.

Utah woman killed on I-15

IDAHO FALLS (UPI) — A 30-year-old Logan, Utah, woman died in a one-car rollover on Interstate 15 five miles south of Idaho Falls Friday night.

The name of the victim was not released, pending notification of family members.

Idaho State Police Sgt. Larry Winner said the accident occurred at the Shelley interchange on I-15. The victim's car was northbound at the time of the accident, he said.

She was pronounced dead at the scene.

The death brought to 12 the number of people killed in highway fatalities in the ISP's eastern Idaho district since the first of the year. The tally hit 26 by this time last year.

'Miracle baby' survives crash's demolition of home

Mother, sister both killed; father was at work

METAIRIE, La. (UPI) — Pastor Gene Richards is helping rescue workers dig through the rubble that hours before had been the home of Gabe and Melanie Trahan.

Richards, who had known the couple for seven years, rushed to the scene Friday as soon as he heard Pan Am Flight 739 had gone down — plowing through trees, through houses, through human lives.

"The home was totally devastated," he said. "The houses on each side were crumpled and burned, but the Trahans' house was leveled."

Feeling helpless, Richards watched as the wreckage grew recognizable — baby blankets, baby clothes, baby toys. He knew this was 16-month-old Melissa's room.

"They were digging through the baby's room," the pastor said outside the emergency room at East Jefferson General Hospital, only feet away from weeping relatives and friends.

"Suddenly, I heard a man boller 'Get a doctor over here,' then he began to pull more rubble out, and there was Melissa. She was faintly crying and dirty and wet from the fire."

Melissa was immediately dubbed "the miracle baby."

The infant, whose mother Melanie, 26, and sister Brigitte, 4, were killed when the plane tore through their home, was listed in good condition after treatment for second-degree burns on her feet and the fingers of her left hand.

Gabe Trahan, 28, was at work at Gulf Industries, a survey equipment company, when he heard the news. He rushed to the hospital, expecting to find his wife with their two daughters. Instead, he found only Melissa.

"He's doing well," the pastor said. "He is holding Melissa, trying to comfort her. He is holding her right now."

Richards described the Trahans as a close-knit family who were good members of his Bridge Lake Baptist Church.

"They do a lot of things together," he said. "Melanie was a very active member of our church. Gabe is a Catholic, but he attends our church from time to time."

"I'm sure the full impact hasn't affected him yet, but he has a lot of friends, church friends and people from work trying to be some comfort to him."

At the crash site, which covered several residential blocks, little was left except the burning remains of wires and metal, crumpled and piled atop one another.

The crash was the worst since 275 people died on May 25, 1979, when an American Airlines DC-10 went down shortly after takeoff at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport. All 272 aboard the plane were killed and three others died on the ground.

The crash scene resembled a war bombing zone, with several houses on fire and other homes demolished. The wreckage of houses were blown out by the force of the crash and bricks flew through the air. White-hot aircraft parts littered the neighborhood.

For blocks, the atmosphere was hazy with white and black smoke billowing hundreds of feet in the air.

The huge Pan Am emblem from the jet's tail was clearly visible atop a heap of black rubble. Hanging from a tree limb 20 feet above the debris was bloody clothing, including an intact shirt.

The main cabin of the jet fell in the middle of a lot where a house once stood.

Nearby, rescue workers carried pieces of corpses in black bags, which were being lined up in rows on a lawn. Hospital workers methodically opened the bags to identify body parts, then spray-painted numbers on the bags.

More than 40 body bags were on the lawn and, nearby, an 18-wheel cargo truck loaded to capacity with bodies left for the temporary morgue.

Sheriff's deputies from all surrounding parishes were called to duty. Rescue workers used construction lamps, tractors and gloves to aid the slow search through the debris — most of it black rubble.

At least four houses were demolished and another partially destroyed. Reporters said the scene said it was almost impossible to distinguish between cremated bodies and rubble.

"It looks like the bodies melted in the rubble," one reporter observed. Residents sat in front of their houses, staring at the wreckage.

"We were just sitting right there in the yard and all of a sudden I heard this great big explosion," said Eddie Seifert, 12.

"It sounded like it skipped about three times," said auto mechanic Billy Lee.

Civil Defense officials issued an urgent appeal for volunteers to help at emergency command centers, to clean the debris and help look for bodies.

At least 150 emergency workers were at the site.

"Apparently as the plane was taking off the engine simply stopped," said Kenner Major Aaron Broussard. He said the plane veered sideways, struck a tree and then hit a house before crashing on the ground.

Linda Rogers of Kenner said she saw a bolt of lightning strike the plane just before it crashed.

"That thing just came down. It hit, man — boom," said a young boy who witnessed the crash.

Shortly after the crash, authorities ordered the airport temporarily closed and planes were warned to veer away from airspace above the crash site.

The American Red Cross opened a shelter for displaced residents at Bonnal High School.

Stunned families of the victims were secluded in the Pan American VIP lounge on the second floor of the airport, where Red Cross nurses and social workers comforted them.

Meanwhile, a morgue was established inside a huge three-story Delta Air Lines hangar a half-mile west of the main terminal.

A 40-foot-by-40-foot concrete slab floor area was cleared for bodies and scores of medical personnel and police were on the scene. The hangar is not air-conditioned and some nurses wore wearing shorts and carried portable air-conditioning units.

Kenner is a New Orleans bedroom community of some 74,000. Many of its residents work at the airport, located 14 miles west of downtown New Orleans.

National Transportation Safety Board investigator Frank Roth rushed from Fort Worth, Texas, to New Orleans immediately to begin a government investigation of the crash. NTSB officials said a large team from Washington was also being sent to join Roth at the scene.

has said he sold his interest in Franks, was out of town Friday and could not be reached, either.

The Elkhorn hotel, golf course and related facilities have been offered for sale to "qualified" hotel owners," Condit said. No price on the complex has been set, Knickreim said. However, he said opening the hotel before it is sold "is not a consideration."

Johns-Manville owns 88 percent of the joint venture. Dollar Mountain Co. owns 15 percent.

The privately owned Elkhorn condominiums — and programs administered by its management company, Elkhorn Property Owners Association — are unaffected by the foreclosure proceedings, according to association manager Stephen Harvill.

Knickreim said Friday that the 9-year-old resort has not turned a profit for the last five years and still remains in debt.

The foreclosure complaint charged that Elkhorn Associates failed to make any payments on a $3.1 million promissory note that was granted to the developers in December 1976.

The complaint also alleged that nearly $1 million in interest was owed the developers, and that more than $387,000 in taxes, $21,000 in rent on the golf course and $23,000 in water and sewer bills was unpaid.

Brown said that the delinquent property and local-option taxes, and the water bills were paid in December by Elkhorn Associates.

Bick said that despite its poor financial record, he is confident the resort is "viable," given "proper effective management, coupled with a well-concentrated marketing program."

How cellular phones would work

The area served by a cellular mobile radio system is divided into small regions, or "cells." Each cell has its own radio frequency transmitter, receiver, switching and control center at the "cell site." Each cell site is connected by standard telephone wires to a central mobile telecommunications switching office (MTSO).

The system enables users of mobile units in different cells to communicate with each other and with owners of standard telephones. It has several key advantages of existing mobile telephone systems: Each low power transmitter has 666 channels and cars passing from one "cell to another" can simply be passed along to the next cell without interrupting the call. Current automotive phone systems use one central, high-power transmitter capable of handling only 12 channels. If a car passes beyond the range of the transmitter on current systems, the call fades and is cut off.

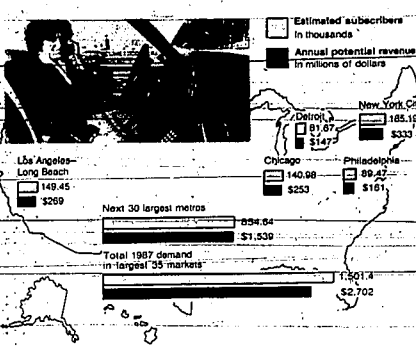

E.F. Johnson's 'cellular' system: Right out of Dick Tracy

Demand for mobile phones

Estimated 1987 demand for cellular mobile telephones

Note: The 30 metropolitan areas for which the Federal Communications Commission will receive cellular applications on June 7 encompass 34 of the above markets due to slightly different boundaries.

By STEVE LIPSON

Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Cellular technology would be the stuff of Dick Tracy two-way wrist radios if such science-fiction creations ever are produced.

It is the heart of a new generation of mobile phones that E.F. Johnson, expected to manufacture at its Twin Falls facility, beginning next year.

Present mobile telephone systems use a large radio transmitter to supply service to mobile phones in a given area. The cellular system uses a series of low-power transmitters in subdivisions of a service area. These subdivisions are called cells.

Presently, only a small number of frequencies are allocated by the Federal Communications Commission for mobile phones. In New York City, there are 12, which means only 12 mobile calls can be in progress at a given moment. The Magic Valley has three mobile frequencies.

The lack of frequency space limits the number of mobile phones in service in the country to about 160,000. Despite the inconvenience of waiting for scarce open frequency to make a call, thousands of people are on waiting lists for mobile phones.

By contrast, the FCC has allocated 666 frequencies for the low-power transmitters in cellular systems, with several hundred more reserved for future service growth.

But that only tells part of the story of the increased capacity offered by cellular technology. Since the transmitters are low-power, the use of a frequency in one cell will not interfere with the use of that same frequency in an adjacent cell in theory, all 666 channels could be used simultaneously in all the cells of a service area.

That will never happen, though, because of another innovation that makes cellular technology so promising.

A central computer will keep track of each call. As the caller moves between cells, the computer can switch the call from transmitter to transmitter with no service interruption. This procedure is called the "hand-off" by the industry.

The switching computer, which was developed by American Telephone and Telegraph more than 10 years ago, monitors the strength of the signals between a mobile phone and a cell transmitter. When the signal begins to deteriorate, the transmitters in the neighboring cells are instructed to search for that signal. The transmitter receiving the strongest signal takes over the call.

Most analysts agree that the potential market for cellular service is enormous. And E.F. Johnson has become the darling of many Wall Street analysts because it is one of the only "pure plays" in cellular technology.

Although Motorola and AT&T, among others, are expected to go into the new market in force, they are such huge companies that the impact from one fast-growing segment of their business will be diluted. E.F. Johnson, a small company compared to the giants, finds itself entering a market where potential annual sales in the hundreds of millions dwarf its current annual sales of about $60 million.

Thus, the thinking on Wall Street goes, if cellular takes off as expected, so will E.F. Johnson.

Up until now, most of the news concerning cellular phones has centered on what companies will receive franchises to offer the service.

Last month, the FCC accepted applications for franchises in the 30 largest markets. The application process for the second 30 largest markets will begin in November, with areas in the rest of the nation open to application during 1983.

More than 160 applications were filed for the two franchises the FCC will award in each of the 30 largest markets.

In a decision finalized earlier this year, although now subject to a legal challenge, the FCC said it would reserve one franchise in each market for a "wireline telephone carrier." Giving one franchise in each market to a supplier of conventional home and business phone service was thought to be a way to speed the new service to the public.

Unfortunately, in the 30 largest cities, there are a number of competing phone companies. These are competing for the right to offer the new service and could force the FCC to go through lengthy hearings before awarding franchises.

Although Bell System companies dominate the phone market, there are independent phone companies supplying service in at least a portion of most major cities.

Thus, about 30 phone companies applied for the 30 franchises the FCC reserved for them.

If the competition among existing phone companies hoping to get into the cellular market is fierce, the competition among non-phone companies is an old-fashioned brawl. More than 140 companies applied for the first 30 franchises available to non-phone companies. In Tampa, Fla., area, for example, 12 companies applied.

Johnson

E.F. Johnson to Twin Falls for almost a year, refused comment Friday until Monday's press conference.

However, William Brack Hale, Ketchum, the real-estate agent who has represented Kellwood in its effort to sell the building, reacted angrily when told of the governor's announcement. He said disclosure would not block the sale at this time, but he speculated it would upset company officials.

The cellular-mobile-telephone market was entered earlier this year with a series of regulatory moves by the Federal Communications Commission.

E.F. Johnson is one of the first companies — although far from the largest — entering what is expected to be a fiercely competitive field. According to a report prepared by the Wall Street firm of Lehman Brothers Kuhn Loeb, Motorola is expected to be the giant in producing the new-generation mobile phones and the equipment needed to use the new technology.

Cellular technology could allow the number of mobile phones in this country to increase from 160,000 — which are expensive and characterized by poor service — yet have years-long waiting lists of people wanting them — by a factor of 10 within the next five years. By 1990, analysts say, the number of mobile phones could increase 100 times or more using cellular technology.

The phones also will cost less to use and provide better service, they say. Cellular technology will allow more than just growth in the number of mobile phones installed in cars. It will allow the development of anywhere portable phones, says Stuart Crump, the editor of Cellular Radio News, a monthly newsletter published in Washington, D.C. Portable phones, which will easily fit in a briefcase, could be the forerunner of the Dick Tracy two-way wrist radio, he says.

E.F. Johnson is poised to become a major force in the mobile and portable phone markets. Crump says the company was one supplier of equipment used by American Telephone and Telegraph in its test of cellular-technology mobile phones in the Chicago area.

E.F. Johnson also is reported to be working with a Millicom, a New York company that hopes to supply cellular service, Crump says. Millicom has been secretive about its plans, he says, but apparently believes it can offer the service for as low as $25 a month, not including the cost of a portable phone. If the monthly price for service should drop that low, demand for portable cellular phones will be astronomical, he predicts.

By way of comparison, current mobile phone service can cost $150 a month, industry analysts say.

Using an AT&T market study, the Lehman Brothers report projected annual revenue to suppliers of cellular service at nearly $3 billion within five years. This figure does not include potential income to makers of cellular phones or other necessary equipment for providing the service. Crump says he expects demand for cellular service to be at least as big as those projections, if not larger.

No one knows how much the cellular phones themselves might cost, he says. Figures such as $2,000 and $3,000 are common guesses.

E.F. Johnson will have to compete with giants in the electronics industry, such as Motorola, which currently supplies about 70 percent of the mobile phone market, and several Japanese firms — IBM and Tandy Corp., which owns Radio Shack stores, are all considering entering the field, the Lehman Brothers study said.

The report cautions that E.F. Johnson tends to be a high-cost producer of equipment, which might be at a competitive disadvantage pitted against larger companies, such as Motorola, that can reduce costs through mass production.

But Horner, E.F. Johnson's president, recently told the Wall Street Journal that his company will hold its own in the market.

"I don't see any reason why we can't get a 30 percent market share," he said. "We have competed with a lot of large companies that have tried to get into the mobile communications business in the past 10 years. We're here and some of them are gone."

Now it appears E.F. Johnson will be here in Twin Falls.

Governor's slip reveals name of Kellwood buyer

TWIN FALLS — Gov. John Evans apologized late Friday for prematurely revealing the name of the company purchasing the Kellwood plant.

"Well, wasn't that public?" Evans asked after being told he had been fired to reveal the name of E.F. Johnson Co. of Waseca, Minn.

"I was told about it by a member of the community, but he didn't mention that the name had not been made public," the governor said.

Area people who helped put the sale together were upset that the governor let the secret slip before their scheduled press conference Monday at which time they planned to reveal all of the details about the purchase.

"I think you're talking about the ex-governor of the state," said one. Brack Hale, the real-estate broker who handled the sale for Kellwood, greeted the news of the premature announcement with a stream of obscenities.

"The governor's office had nothing to do with this industrial real-estate sale," said Mike Dalton, the executive director of the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce. "I'm very disappointed with the governor."

Evans was in Twin Falls early Friday morning to attend a rock and gem show at the College of Southern Idaho. At that show, he disclosed the name of the purchasing company to a radio station disc jockey. Evans didn't learn the impact of his "casual conversation" until he was contacted at a fund-raiser in Malad late Friday afternoon.

The governor would not release the name of the individual who told him of the Kellwood sale. Evans only would say that he learned the news "during general conversation."

Evans stressed that neither he nor his staff, nor the state's Division of Economic and Community Affairs were taking credit for the sale.

Mideast

Al Hassan said there was a general agreement between the PLO and the Lebanese government about the future political and military presence of the guerrilla organization in the country, but that all talks with the Lebanese government had been suspended because of the change the PLO saw in Habib's position.

Al Hassan said the PLO wanted an international force under a U.N. supervision deployed in Beirut before the leaders and guerrillas withdraw, but that Habib, after originally agreeing to this, had changed his position.

He said Habib now insisted that the troops come after the guerrillas left.

Al Hassan said the PLO still insists on a continued military and political presence in Lebanon, which the Israelis refuse to allow.

Habib joined Lebanese officials for peace talks at Babdaa Presidential Palace where after a 5-day boycott, Prime Minister Cheikh Wazzan met with President Elias Sarkis and Habib.

But as they met, heavy fighting — including Israeli gunboats — raged between the Israelis and Palestinians and continued well into the night.

Israeli gunboats shelled a wide section of west Beirut from their tank and artillery positions in the hills overlooking the battered capital. As night fell, Israeli gunboats joined in the fighting.

The Palestinians answered with streams of Soviet-made Katyusha rockets and the military command in Tel Aviv reported seven Israeli soldiers wounded, one seriously.

Israel also said it returned fire against Syrian guns.

Israeli fire hit Palestinian positions and several residential areas igniting several fires, witnesses said.

"It's a real hell. The sky is red and my house shakes as Palestinians unload their Katyushas. Even the window glass shatter," a Lebanese resident in Moslem west Beirut told UPI on the telephone.

Palestinian guerrillas also fired rockets on the densely populated Christian neighborhood of Ashrafieh, in east Beirut, a police source said.

The shells slammed onto two of the city's main east-west crossings, Beirut's race track, the Bourj Barjneh refugee camp, the Palestinian Fakhani neighborhood where many PLO offices are located as well as the residential sections of Ramlet El-Beyda and Talet El-Khayat.

The Beirut airport area took a beating with one shell wounding 10 Lebanese Army regulars in the airport terminal.

Earlier in the day, senior officials with Reagan in California had said the hoped-for agreement provided that Israeli forces would pull back one kilometer (less than a mile) while the PLO fighters begin evacuating. Once that was assured, attention would turn to the withdrawal of other armed forces from Lebanon.

Farouk Kaddoumi, the PLO's political chief said in London "70 percent of the agreement" was completed and said a plan might be finalized "within 24 hours."

Ex-page tells investigator's congressman's names

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The former page who is the chief accuser in the Capitol Hill sex scandal gave congressional investigators Friday the names of four lawmakers he claims had homosexual relations with teenage pages.

Senate officials, meantime, announced recommendations for reforming the page system, shaken by allegations not only of homosexuality but of cocaine use.

Leroy Williams, 18, of North Little Rock, Ark., who flunked an FBI lie detector test Thursday, met for three hours with investigators for the House Ethics Committee, which will open hearings into the allegations next week.

Williams said after the meeting he told the investigators of "my involvement with the congressmen" and of "acting as a liaison" between at least one senator and homosexual prostitutes.

The teenager, who left his job as a page in January, has alleged he had sex with three congressmen and arranged a meeting between a senator and a homosexual prostitute employed by Friendly Models, a business railed earlier this year.

Williams indicated he talked to officials to protect himself because the House Keepers Office has circulated his name as one of those involved in an investigation into alleged cocaine use by pages and lawmakers.

"I regret being pushed to the extent I do have to talk," Williams said. He said he used drugs "socially" but was not a "dealer."

Rep. Robert Dornan, R-Calif., who allowed an undercover narcotics agent to work out of his office last year, said Thursday seven members of Congress and two ex-congressmen are involved in the drug scandal.

Bob Scott, Williams' lawyer, confirmed the ex-page gave the committee staff the names of four lawmakers who allegedly had homosexual relations with pages, but neither Scott nor Williams would tell reporters their identities.

Williams, who said he is willing to testify under oath and "without immunity," admitted he "flat-out flunked" the FBI lie detector test.

Scott quoted an FBI official as saying Williams "was lying from the beginning to the end. There wasn't a bit of truth."

But Williams insisted the polygraph examiner "was just not objective at all" in framing his questions, and Scott dismissed the examination as "nothing more than 20th century witch-hunt."

And the attorney said it did not damage Williams' credibility in his eyes, although he conceded that would not be true of the general public.

Neither Scott nor Williams would discuss specific questions or the areas that the House investigators were interested in. They said they had no information on anyone else the committee was questioning.

Williams confirmed he had bounced checks while on Capitol Hill, but denied lying on his page application or running off with another page's car. He said he was not fired, but left on his own because he wanted to go home.

The main reform drafted by the Senate Management Board, which began its review before the page scandal broke, is to replace young teenagers with high school juniors who would serve one year.

Senate pages may start at age 14 and stay for four years, attending the Capitol Page School.

Christi, actor, killed outside home

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Character actor Frank R. Christi was shot to death outside his home Friday.

Christi, 52, who appeared in "The Godfather" and many television series, was shot as he stepped out of his car at his home in North Hollywood shortly after midnight, police said.

Police said there was no obvious motive for the slaying. "There was no sign of robbery and there was no forced entry to his home," said Detective Bill Welch. Neighbors did not see any suspects fleeing the area, he said.

Christi played "both good guys and bad guys" in TV series such as "Barney," "Hill Street Blues," "Mannix," "Kojak," and "The Incredible Hulk," his agents said.

He had also been seen in "Gunsmoke," "Mission Impossible,"

"Mod Squad" and "Bonanza."

Christi, who often played gangsters, was arrested in 1972 on charges of possessing $100,000 in counterfeit money.

After he cooperated with prosecutors in building a case against another defendant, he was fired and placed on five years probation by a judge, who commented that Christi was "maybe confusing real life with roles he has played."

Steel talk details kept quiet

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The United Steelworkers union and U.S. Steel Corp. Friday completed two days of closed-door talks on easing the plight of the depressed industry, and the union proclaimed itself satisfied with the effort.

But other than word that the "problem-solving" discussions were candid and productive, officials were tight-lipped on details of the talks, authorized in June by the USW's 633-member Basic Steel Industry Conference.

U.S. Steel officials offered only a "no comment" as they filed out of the final five-hour session. James McGeehan, chairman of the USW's negotiating committee, said only that the union had done what it set out to do.

"I feel satisfied that we accomplished our responsibility," McGeehan said. "We met and established among ourselves our problems, brought them to the attention of the company and then discussed our mutual problems." Union officials said the talks between 75 officials of the steel giant and 140 USW local presidents did not include a company request for USW concessions or a reopening of the current contract running through Aug. 1, 1983.

Similar talks are planned before month's end between the USW and seven other top U.S. steelmakers who, with U.S. Steel, bargain with the union as a unit.

'82 state budget balanced through accounting handiwork

BOISE (UPI)—Idaho's 1982 budget has been balanced without a penny to spare and only because a $7.2 million potential debt was delayed for payment in the new fiscal period, State Auditor Joe Williams said Friday.

Final figures on the just-ended fiscal year that were revealed by Williams showed officials had to delay last-minute expense of $5.6 in payroll funds and encumber another $1.8 million in agency expenses.

"If we hadn't encumbered this, we couldn't have balanced the budget," Williams said.

In effect, $7.2 million of fiscal 1982 bills went unpaid, but accounting moves allowed officials to delay payment until during the new fiscal year.

"We paid everything we could to the last cent," Williams said, noting that it was the first time in his more than two decades as auditor that the state had not had at least a small surplus left over at the end of a budget year.

The budget scrambling that began when a $12.1 million revenue shortfall was predicted by Gov. John Evans two months ago was necessary because the Idaho Constitution requires a balanced budget.

Revenue came in at about $68 million at the end of the fiscal year, compared to the $422 million estimated by the Legislature when it drafted the budget, officials said this week.

Meantime Friday, Lt. Gov. Phil Batt said he returned 23.6 percent of his budget — $11,500 — to the general fund in a show of support for the budget cutting required to meet the $12.1 million shortfall of fiscal 1982.

And State Treasurer Marjorie Ruth Moon said she collected $1,089,819 in accelerated interest earnings that were requested by Evans in June. The treasurer said that was more than she had expected to collect, about $1 million.

Part of the spending encumbrance — the $5.6 million portion — was announced by Evans and Williams on the final day of the fiscal year, June 30. The additional holdover developed as final bills trickled into the auditor's office. Williams said state agency bills accounted for $1.3 million and the other $300,000 came from higher education institutions.

The first budget maneuver was criticized by political opponents of Evans and Williams, both Democrats seeking re-election.

Batt, the Republican gubernatorial nominee, said Evans' decision to delay payment gave the state one less option to use in any future year-end revenue pinch.

Evans said he withheld the funds so the state would have enough money to pay the final $3.9 million public school support payment and thereby avoid an automatic property-tax hike to compensate the schools for the loss.

Critics also said delaying expenses was an especially unsound move because the state already faces a projected $40 million revenue shortfall in fiscal year 1983.

Water board - pledges support

BOISE (UPI)—The Idaho Water Resources Board Friday pledged its "full and complete" cooperation with the Northwest Power Planning Council's program to protect and enhance fish and wildlife on the Columbia River and its tributaries. Among its responsibilities, the council must carry out a program to reverse the long-term decline in migrant steelhead and salmon.

$20,700 reward paid to person who helped locate Dallas

MURPHY (UPI)—A reward of more than $20,000 has been paid to the individual credited with supplying information that led to the capture of Claude L. Dallas Jr., according to Owyhee County officials.

Dallas, 32, is being held in the Canyon County Jail in Caldwell. The Paradise Valley, Nev., resident will go on trial in September on charges that he murdered Idaho Fish and Game officers Bill Pogue and Wilson Conley Elms.

Shortly after the murders, a reward fund was established.

Owyhee County Sheriff Tim Nettleton said the decision to pay the reward was made by a committee comprised of private citizens and a representative of the Fish and Game Department.

Nettleton said he was notified by the FBI that there was an individual eligible for the reward. The sheriff, in turn, presented the information to the reward committee which authorized payment.

Nettleton said the committee authorized the payment of $20,700 to an individual who in turn delivered the funds to another person.

The sheriff said an additional sum of about $18,000 is being held back because "some other people" also may be eligible to receive some reward funds.

The reward poster issued while Dallas was still at large stated that the money would be paid "for information leading to the arrest and conviction" of the fugitive.

Nettleton said he did not feel paying the reward prior to the trial should be interpreted as a presumption of guilt.

"To me, it was an error to put the part about conviction on the poster in the first place," the sheriff said. "The individual who provided the information has no control over whether he (Dallas) is convicted."

Michael Donnelly, Dallas' Boise attorney, said he had not been informed that the reward had been paid. Donnelly said he had no comment at this time on what impact the payment may have on his case.

What's what

Sex hormones produced in the human body at puberty tend to lock bone growth in place. Girls reach puberty about two years earlier than boys do, typically. So boys have extra time before those hormones brake that growth. This, some experts say, is why boys grow taller than girls.

Q. How much does the average hot air balloon cost?
A. About as much as the average car.

Q. Is it true the Boys Scouts of America routinely burn the American flag in some sort of ceremony?
A. Not that. But they will burn your worn out flag for you without charge in accordance with patriotic protocol, if you ask them to. Or most troops will, anyhow.

Q. How many former major league baseball players are there?
A. A. Maybe 6,000.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Avoid a dispute over past conditions with close ties and you can grasp the chance for a new beginning. You can easily get the backing you need to become more successful.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Ideal day to make plans that can bring greater abundance. Be sure to show others that you're a logical person.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): Use a new system now that can improve the quality of your work. Be alert to new interests that could prove profitable.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): A new activity could be just the tonic you need now to gain greater happiness. Show a loved one that you are truly devoted.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): A day to entertain new acquaintances and make a fine impression on them. Show that you have poise.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Avoid controversial subjects when dealing with others today. Take no chances with your fine reputation. Be careful of finances.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Study new ways to add to your income and decide what is best for you. Sidestep one who spends money foolishly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Steer clear of those you've had altercations with in the past and avoid trouble. A good time to engage in favorably.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Don't waste energy over something which you cannot change. A new philosophy of life can be most rewarding now.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Make it your business to meet new and interesting persons today, but maintain loyalty to long-time friends.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Obey every rule and regulation that applies to you and thereby escape possible trouble with the law. Be happy.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): If you take a new view of an old problem, you find that this can prove most advantageous. Be more objective in your thinking.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Use good judgment for solving a dispute and forget those hunches which are erroneous now. Bewary of strangers.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY he or she will be more concerned with the past than the present, so teach to hold on to which is good of the past and adopt that which is good of the present. Don't neglect the right kind of spiritual training.

Royal christening set for Aug. 4

LONDON (UPI) — Prince William of Wales, the son of Prince Charles and Princess Diana born 16 days ago, will be christened at Buckingham Palace on Aug. 4, the queen mother's 82nd birthday.

The Archbishop of Canterbury Dr. Robert Runcie — probably using water from the River Jordan as is the royal custom — will baptize the prince into the Anglican Church as William Arthur Philip Louis.

Buckingham Palace said Charles and Diana had invited the entire royal family, the baby's six godparents and an "anonymous" number of friends for the noon-time occasion.

It is not known if the baby's uncle,

Prince Andrew, a pilot with British forces in the Falklands, will be back home in time for the christening.

The Aug. 4 date coincides with the 82nd birthday of Queen Mother Elizabeth, the baby's great grandmother, but was not specifically chosen because of that, a palace spokesman said. The press of royal duties also dictated the date.

The royal family usually goes to Balmoral Castle in Scotland in August and September. Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip leave for Australia and a Pacific tour in October. Princess Anne does not return from a tour of Canada until later this month.

Royal babies are usually christened in the gold and white Music Room overlooking the Buckingham Palace garden. The queen's three eldest children were baptized there in a silver gilt font with water from the River Jordan.

"Born June 21, the prince, like his father and his grandmother the queen, is likely to wear an historic robe of Honiton lace over a satin petticoat, made at the express wish of Queen Victoria.

Among those who might attend the christening are the royal baby's six godparents, including ex-King Constantine of Greece, Lord Romney who loaned his country mansion to the prince and princess of Wales.

Boone receives poor Broadway reviews

United Press International

UNLUCKY SEVEN

Debbie "You Light Up My Life" Boone made her Broadway debut Thursday night in a newly assembled stage version of the 1954 Jane Powell movie "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers," but maybe that was a mistake. The New York Post critic found Miss Boone "refreshingly sexy — a sort of American Julie Andrews." But the Daily News said "the whole thing goes down like a dose of Maaalax." And the New York Times observed: "The star's acting skills are minimal, but when her hair is up and her forced good cheer is particularly frosty, one can picture her doing a rude impression of Nancy Reagan on 'Saturday Night Live'."

SPEEDY

President Reagan's son Michael and two friends will rev up a 38-hp, twin turbo-diesel engine Scarab at

New Orleans July 21 in an attempt to break the 10-year-old Mississippi powerboat speed record from New Orleans to St. Louis. The 37-year-old Reagan, a veteran boat racer, hopes to break the record of 28 hours 50 minutes set in 1972 by William Tedford Jr. of "Little Rock" on the 1,027-mile course. But "Our primary goal is to raise money for the United States Olympic Committee. If we set a record, fine," Reagan had to call off a planned 280-mile test of the boat after 2 miles Friday because of transmission problems.

AGENT 000

Roger Moore is holding out — maybe for more money — on the next James Bond picture "Octopussy." So producer Albert Broccoli is in London testing possible successors, including James Brolin. Variety reports the Oscar-winning "Chariots of Fire" has become the biggest imported movie moneymaker in U.S. history with more than $57 million in box office receipts.

What's what

Sex hormones produced in the human body at puberty tend to lock bone growth in place. Girls reach puberty about two years earlier than boys do, typically. So boys have extra time before those hormones brake that growth. This, some experts say, is why boys grow taller than girls.

The newer the tennis ball at any given moment in a match, the less likely a player will be injured at that given moment. Statistical studies prove that. Large-faced racquets also appear to cut down on injuries.

HOT AIR BALLOON

Q. How much does the average hot air balloon cost?
A. About as much as the average car.

Q. Is it true the Boys Scouts of America routinely burn the American flag in some sort of ceremony?
A. Not that. But they will burn your worn out flag for you without charge in accordance with patriotic protocol. If you ask them to. Or most troops will, anyhow.

Q. How many former major league baseball players are there?
A. Maybe 6,000.

ICE BAG

Is it too obvious to point out that an ice bag under your smilies will keep you cool on especially hot nights? Maybe. But even oldtimers who used hotwater bottles in the winter rarely think of using ice bags in the summer.

Argentina junta nears unity

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — Army chief Gen. Cristino Nicolaides said Friday Argentina's armed forces are "one step away" from restoring unity to the military junta, split in the aftermath of the defeat in the Falkland Islands war.

"We are closer than ever to achieving a total restoration of the military junta," Nicolaides said during a visit to injured soldiers at a hospital. "I would say we are one step away from achieving it."

The army chief said the members of the junta had only disagreed on who should be designated president after former President Leopoldo Galtieri's fall from power following Britain's victory in the battle over the Falkland Islands.

Nicolaides, who took command of the army from Galtieri shortly after the June 14 Argentine surrender, unilaterally appointed retired Gen. Renaldo Bignone as president for a term scheduled to end by March 1984.

Bignone has been directed to hand over power to a civilian government. Argentina had been governed by a military junta — formed by the commanders of the army, navy and air force — since March 1976. But the air force and navy pulled out of the junta in opposition to Bignone's appointment.

Nicolaides earlier had said strong consideration was being given to the appointment of a civilian vice president, a move to appease the air force and navy.

Bignone and the three armed forces commanders attended an austere independence day celebration and mass during the day.

Carlos Rodriguez, a top economist, meanwhile predicted hyper-inflation for the nation's immediate future. It could total 20 to 50 percent in August, he said.

"Who will stop this," Diario Popular newspaper said in a front-page headline. "Prices have gone through the roof."

The financial hysteria sparked by an economic emergency plan enacted Tuesday left off Friday as banks, business and markets closed for the nation's independence day.

Rodriguez, in an interview with La Nacion newspaper published Friday, said the big losers in the near future will be people who have saved Argentine pesos.

Creditors, however, will see the real value of their debts drop sharply, the economist said.

British occupation ends other worries

Peace brings new problems to Falklands

STANLEY, Falkland Islands (UPI) — Central Stanley was without water Friday, one of the problems of a war and a peace which have transformed the once tranquil Falkland Islands in the South Atlantic.

"Undoubtedly, Stanley and its people are showing the strains of three months of occupation," said Rex Hunt, the civil commissioner, who as the islands' colonial governor was deported by invading Argentine forces.

Argentina seized the Falklands by force April 2. Britain recaptured them in a 10-week war which cost 861 British and Argentine dead, 139 Argentines missing, and untold millions of dollars worth of ships, aircraft, missiles and ammunition lost or expended. Hostilities ended 12 days ago.

For the first time, reporters moved onto the islands apart from British war correspondents who reported the fighting, the signs of transformation were clear to see.

Stanley, the capital and major port, used to see only four British supply ships per year. Now harbor anchorages are thick with trawlers, tankers, ferries commissioned by the Royal Navy task force plus the warships which remain.

The Falkland Islands military garrison used to be 42 men. Now it is more than 4,000.

Stanley's streets once were quiet as country lanes. Now they rumble to the sound of British trucks, troop carriers and captured Argentine vehicles.

The winter's first real snow fell this week, and normally solitude would have helped. Now army snowcats roar everywhere, having no problem in maneuvering on the icy streets.

The island's water supply was knocked out in the fighting. Emergency supplies were fished out, but Thursday a peat fire behind the Upland Gosse Hotel disrupted the temporary system in the middle of town.

Hunt said the "fresh water system is a high priority for civil and military engineers assigned to Stanley."

One worry the 1,500 islanders no longer have is their supply line with the United Kingdom.

Now the wool industry is trying to repair damage caused by the war, though it will take time to replace dead sheep — in the meantime another "industry" has come to the rescue, making remarkable progress — postage stamps.

Solidarity promises more secret broadcasts

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Solidarity activists said Friday they have suspended underground radio broadcasts from Warsaw because of jamming by the government, the arrest of their announcer and seizure of a transmitter.

However, they said, illegal broadcasts from Poznan and Gdansk would continue and leaflets would be distributed when the Warsaw programs resume.

"Police action which took place June 8 resulted in seizure of one of the transmitters working in Warsaw," members of the Radio Solidarity staff said in a clandestine press release to members of the Western press.

"Difficulties connected with it (the station) as well as intensive jamming made it necessary to suspend Radio Solidarity activities in Warsaw for the time being," they said.

The broadcasts, beamed every Sunday over the past seven weeks, could barely be heard apparently because of the loss of the transmitter.

The final crunch leading to the suspension of their broadcasts, was the arrest Monday of Irena Romaszewska, the Solidarity's announcer.

She was arrested along with Roger Noel, detained for smuggling the transmitter into Poland, and Joanna Szczesna, a writer for the underground press.

However, Solidarity broadcasts beamed from northern seaport of Gdansk, where the labor movement began, and Poznan will continue to be aired every Sunday, union sources said. There was no indication how well those radio stations were being received.

The seized equipment allegedly was smuggled into the country by Noel, who disguised the transmitter in a shipment of electrical hospital equipment destined for an internment center.

The government-run media described Noel as an "anarchist" who sympathized with the Solidarity movement and their underground operations.

Zolnier Wolnosel, the armed forces newspaper, accused the suspended union of having links with the Red Brigades terrorist organization based in Italy.

It alleged that a married couple from Italy who belonged to the Red Brigades was friendly with interned Solidarity leaders.

OPEC maintains ceiling

VIENNA, Austria (UPI) — OPEC decided Friday against increasing its 17.5 million barrel-a-day production ceiling despite violations by rebel members, Iraq's oil minister said.

Speaking to reporters after a lunch break in OPEC's emergency session, Iraq's Qasim Ahmed Taqi said through an interpreter, "The ceiling will not be raised."

The remainder of the conference of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries will be spent discussing measures to enforce errant members' output quotas and price differentials between varying grades of OPEC crude oil, Taqi said.

Venezuelan Oil Minister Humberto Calderon Bertl indicated OPEC would realign the quotas to allow some members to pump more oil — Algeria — stop ignoring their quotas.

The 13-nation cartel imposed the first lid on production in its history April 1 in a desperate gamble to prevent its $34-a-barrel base price from cracking under the global oil glut.

But the quotas breakers have swelled OPEC's output to 18.2 million barrels a day and discounted their excess crude in violation of OPEC pricing policy, OPEC officials said.

OPEC is faced with the thorny task of bringing its maverick members back into line or redistributing their output quotas to stabilize the market, which has weakened in the past month because of over-production and price cutting.

If OPEC realigns the quotas, Calderon said each OPEC member must stay within its limit to reverse the slump in the world oil market.

"If we fix a quota, we have to stick by that quota," he said.

OPEC also was expected to consider reviewing the quotas each month rather than quarterly to enable producers to react swiftly to market trends.

In an opening address to the session, OPEC President Eduardo Ortega said the balance between supply and demand had deteriorated since the group's May summit in Quito and blamed consuming nations for the "continued manipulation — of large — inventories."

Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani did not attend the meeting, sparking speculation he wanted to avoid a confrontation with Iran, OPEC's largest quota offender. He was represented by a member of the Saudi OPEC board of governors.

Space team given honors

MOSCOW (UPI) — A French fleet and two Soviet Cosmonauts who spent 8 days orbiting the Earth in a Russian space lab received the Soviet Union's highest decorations Friday.

The cause of the flight — by the Soviet-French crew offers a good example of effective and mutually beneficial cooperation between countries with different social and political systems, of cooperation in the interests of peace and scientific and technical progress," Prime Minister Nikolai Tikhonov said during a Kremlin ceremony.

Commander Vladimir Dzhanibekov was awarded the Order of Lenin while Alexander Ivanchenkov was awarded the Order of Lenin and a second Gold Star medal.

French cosmonaut Jean-Loup Chretien was named a hero of the Soviet Union and given the Order of Lenin and Gold Star.

There was so little room left on Dzhanibekov's bemedaled uniform jacket that Tikhonov had to pause for a moment to find a place to pin the latest medal.

The three linked up with the Salyut space lab during their eight-day voyage in space, joining two other Soviet — cosmonauts — Anatoly Bereznev and Valentin Lebedev, who stayed behind in the space lab, have completed their eighth week in orbit.

Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev generally awards such decorations, but he is out of town "for a rest," in the words of the official news agency Tass.

"The results of the work done will benefit science and serve progress and the cause of stronger ties and mutually advantageous cooperation between our two countries," Dzhanibekov said in accepting the award.

Chemical spill

Hospital quickly reacts to potential danger; no one injured

By STEPHANIE SCHOROW
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A broken bottle of sodium cyanide — a chemical that produces the gas used in execution chambers — forced the closure of a section of Magic Valley Regional Medical Center early Friday afternoon.

No patients or employees were affected by the potentially lethal fumes, which were confined to the vacant laboratory in the older section of the hospital.

Twin Falls firefighters, wearing oxygen masks, cleaned up the chemical in about an hour and removed the remains for safe disposal.

The nuclear-medicine department, the only department in operation in that section of the hospital, was closed immediately. It will remain closed until deemed safe, according to Pat Neale, the department's chief technologist.

The broken bottle was discovered around noon by two laboratory employees who went into the deserted laboratory to collect supplies. They smelled the gas, located the quart-sized bottle and informed hospital officials, who in turn called the Fire Department.

Sodium cyanide, a white crystal formerly used in some laboratory tests, forms a gas when combined with water or moisture in the air. Laboratory personnel said the chemical is no longer needed at the hospital due to new testing methods.

The bottle apparently had been left in a cardboard box with other trash during the laboratory's move to new quarters. Neale speculated that someone may have kicked the box, breaking the bottle and exposing the sodium cyanide to moisture in the air.

As the only staffer working in that section of the hospital, Neale said she was certain the bottle was not broken until after 10 a.m., since she had been working in the area until then.

No patients were exposed to the fumes. The old laboratory is located on the first floor and is not close to patients' rooms.

$190,000 sought

United Way sets fund goal

By SUSAN GALLAGHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The leaders of the United Way of Magic Valley Inc. hope to raise $190,000 in their annual campaign, scheduled to start Oct. 1.

Recommendations for the allocation of the $190,000 in 1983 were approved by the United Way board at a meeting Friday noon. Members of the committee that issued the request increases said granting the full amount requested by each applicant would have required a $229,000 United Way budget.

The committee recommended that funds be granted to 15 of the 16 agencies requesting them. The Early Childhood Learning Center's application was denied.

For 1982, United Way had a goal of $160,000 and ended its campaign with $155,000, of which about $2,000 was a carryover from the previous year. The 1982 campaign, spanning five months, was prolonged partly because of a change in executive directors. Board members say they expect to complete this year's campaign in one month.

Fred Florence, a member of the allocations committee, said this year's appropriations basically reflect increases that account for inflation. The general philosophy, he said, is for the 1982 beneficiaries in Twin Falls to maintain their present spending power.

The plan calls for $160,000 to be raised in Twin Falls. Outlying communities that benefit from United Way will be tapped for the remaining $30,000.

In 1983, the Boy Scouts are expected to remain the leading recipient of United Way money. The Boy Scouts' 1983 allocation is $31,500, which is the same amount budgeted for the Scouts in 1982.

Also leading the list of recipients are: the American Red Cross, $29,000; the Salvation Army, $28,450; and the Magic Valley YFCA, $26,750. The respective amounts budgeted for these agencies last year were $27,200, $24,000 and $23,400.

Other recipients of United Way money, their allocations for 1983 and for the present year, respectively, are: Ageless Senior Citizens, $4,250, $4,000; Twin Falls Senior Citizens, $4,500, $4,000; West End Senior Citizens, $4,850, $4,000; Arthritis Foundation, $2,000, $2,350; Campfire Inc., $7,400 both years; Girl Scouts, $4,000, $3,000; Twin Falls County Mental Health Association, $1,500, $1,300; Magic Valley Alcohol Recovery Centers, $4,850, $4,400; and United Cerebral Palsy, $2,350, $2,200.

Agencies that are targeted for money in 1983, but were not United Way recipients this year, are: The Hagerman-Senior Citizens and the Silver and Gold Citizens. Their approved allocations are $4,200 and $1,250, respectively.

The board has budgeted $25,620 to administer United Way in 1983. The 1982 figure was $20,470. Board members say the increase included money that could be used to raise the salary of United Way's executive director, Sandy Thomas, later this year when her performance is evaluated. Administrative money that is not used will be distributed to United Way agencies, board members said.

In another matter Friday, the board tabled a proposal that United Way's agreements with its beneficiaries be revised so that United Way can more closely regulate the use of the money it disburses.

Board member Walt Sinclair offered the proposal to the federal government hamstringing the states in their use of federal grants. But another board member said the proposal for closer control could provide for greater fairness in allocating United Way money.

Forest supervisor accepts promotion to Washington, D.C.

By RON ZEILAR
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Paul Barker, the Sawtooth National Forest supervisor for the past three and-a-half years, will leave Twin Falls in September for a promotion and transfer to Washington, D.C.

Barker, 47, will serve as assistant director for recreation in the Forest Service's Washington headquarters. According to Kent Mays, the acting regional forester for the agency's Intermountain Region in Ogden, Utah.

That position includes national responsibility for developing recreation sites, such as campgrounds and ski areas, and for national forest concessions, such as special-use permits for outfitters and guides.

An early order of business for Barker might be finding a compromise between established river outfitters and administrators, who believe Forest Service permits should be awarded to the highest qualified bidder.

Idaho Sen. James McClure has thrown his considerable political muscle behind the outfitters, at one point calling Forest Service bureaucrats "arrogant twerps."

Barker is no stranger to controversy. He arrived in Twin Falls in the midst of a battle between lumber and wildlife interests over future management of the South Hills, where disease and insects have ravaged timber stands. Acting on a formal appeal from the Idaho Conservation League, Barker trimmed the commercial timber harvest in half and allocated more trees to firewood cutters.

P&Z denies conflict of interest on IFF

By SUSAN GALLAGHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The claim that a recent Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning Commission vote involved a conflict of interest is not true, according to the commission's vice chairman.

The allegation was made at the Twin Falls County Commission's June 23 hearing about the disputed compatibility of Snake River Canyon zoning and Idaho Frozen Foods plan to install waste-treatment basins in the canyon.

Attorney G. Lance Salladay, who represents Meander Point homeowners opposed to IFF's plan, said at the hearing that a conflict of interest existed because some of the zoning commissioners who voted on the dispute had sold potatoes to IFF.

Marilyn Butler, the vice chairman of the zoning commission, said Friday that the zoning commission does not believe there was a conflict of interest. The issue was discussed at Thursday night's Planning and Zoning Commission meeting.

Butler says none of the commissioners presently sell potatoes to IFF.

Commissioner Glenn Nelson of Twin Falls had sold to IFF previously, according to Butler, and Commissioner Jim Wheeler of Castleford says he may have done business with IFF 13 or 14 years ago.

Butler's tally was verified when The Times-News telephoned the homes of farmers who serve on the zoning commission. Nelson's wife says he is semi-retired and last grew potatoes about five years ago.

Salladay said his allegation was based on a zoning commission meeting at which "an older gentleman on the board" stated he had grown potatoes all his life, had sold them to Idaho Frozen Foods and did not believe potato wastes would smell. The Meander Point residents, who live above the canyon site selected by IFF for the treatment plant, said potential odors were among their concerns.

Butler says Nelson was the man to whom Salladay referred. Nelson's comments were made at a June 10 planning and zoning commission meeting, she says.

IFF formally submits application for zoning permit

By SUSAN GALLAGHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Idaho Frozen Foods has submitted an application for a zoning permit to install waste-treatment basins in the Snake River Canyon, according to the zoning administrator for Twin Falls County.

However, administrator Ed Woods says he hasn't decided how to handle IFF's application. The county commission has determined that the issue of IFF's waste-treatment system is settled. The commissioners say they resolved the matter July 1, when they upheld the County Planning and Zoning Commission's finding that the IFF plan and the canyon's outdoor-recreation zoning are compatible.

However, Dennis Voorhes, a deputy prosecutor, who acted as the commission's attorney in the matter, has said a zoning permit is required.

The finding by the county commissioners was issued after a group of canyon-rim homeowners contended that IFF's treatment project would violate the canyon's zoning. The residents said IFF should apply for a zoning permit, and a public hearing should be held.

An Idaho Frozen Foods employee, speaking on behalf of Lee Odenwald, the company's president and general manager, said Friday that the work necessary for construction of IFF's project is proceeding.

IFF officials said early this month that they believe the project's anticipated completion date of Oct. 30 can be met, despite the delays that resulted from the opposition to their plan.

Thompsons honored at Kimberly celebration

By KATE LOPEZ
Times-News correspondent

KIMBERLY — Ed and Naomi Thompson are Kimberly's new "Good Neighbors of the Year."

The annual award, presented at a community picnic Friday evening in the city park by last year's award winners, Wallace and Jeannie Brown, marked the beginning of a two-day celebration for the city.

They (the Thompsons) are people who have grown up here, married here and had children here," said Jeannie Brown during the presentation.

"They have been a great help in all school functions, and no matter what project the Chamber (of Commerce) has going, they are involved. In a quiet way, but always involved. No two people are more deserving of this award," she said.

"We were told that Naomi used to be known, at the time she was married, by the young of shoer she owned. Her husband said he had to carry them in a pickup. And Ed, when he first came to school in Kimberly, wore knickers," Brown told the audience.

According to the Thompsons, who own the IGA store in Kimberly, they had no idea they were going to receive the award.

"But I couldn't figure out why all my family was here when they already had eaten," Naomi said.

"It's a terrific honor, and we are very grateful," she said, as her husband nodded his head in approval.

The celebration will continue today, beginning with a flag ceremony at 6 a.m., followed by an all-you-can-eat breakfast in the municipal park.

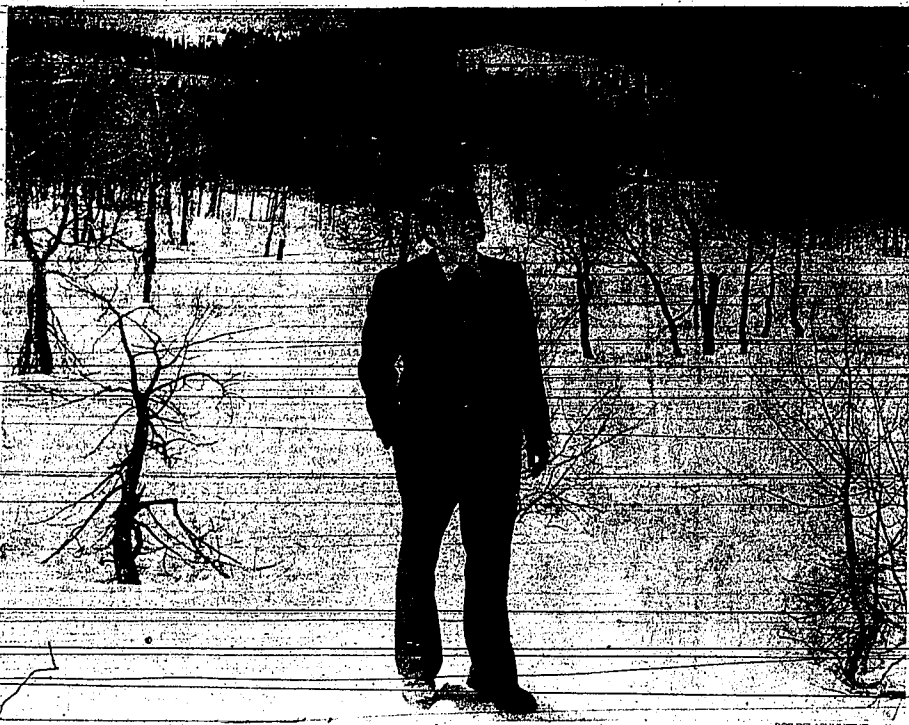

A parade, honoring the Thompsons as Kimberly's Good Neighbors, will begin at 10:30 a.m.

A wide variety of events will be held throughout the day for children and adults, including baby-crawling and horse-shoe-pitching contests.

An early-evening barbecue will be followed by street dancing from 7 to 9 p.m.

Lorraine Molyneux congratulates Naomi and Ed Thompson, Kimberly's "Good Neighbors"

Paul Barker, Sawtooth National Forest supervisor, will leave his duties managing area forests, for a transfer and promotion.

Barker

"When you look at why the Sawtooth exists, it comes back to range, wildlife and recreation," Barker said in an interview Friday. "I've defended previous administrators' decisions as consistent with priorities at the time they were made."

Both the ICL and livestock grazers, who use the national forest had high praise for Barker when informed of the transfer.

"It's our loss and the nation's gain, I guess," said Laird Noh, a sheep raiser and an Idaho legislator. "I thought he was balanced and objective, and very good at communicating with the public. . . He delegated responsibility to people in the field who knew the resources best."

"His relations with conservation have been extremely open and direct," said Pat Ford, the ICL's executive director.

Ford said Barker handled a renewed mining-claims controversy in the White Clouds Mountains last fall in an open and straightforward manner.

"The Sawtooth is generally a recreation forest. He ought to be good in his new position," Ford said.

Mays confirmed that Barker was selected for the job because of his experience in recreation management and planning.

"In recent years, Paul has been exposed to the contemporary challenges that face recreation with his experience, that ranges from Southern California to the Sawtooth National Recreation Area in Idaho," Mays said.

In addition to the Sawtooth Forest, Barker has served in the Kanab and St. Joe national forests in Idaho.

Barker predicted the Forest Service will turn more of its recreation functions over to concessionaires in the coming years in an effort to trim expenses, but he agreed with McClure that Congress probably will not approve entrance fees for national forest lands.

He said he is looking forward to the new job but regrets leaving "an area that is as compatible with my interests and has the type of community that we enjoy here in Twin Falls."

His family will remain in Twin Falls during the coming school year to allow a daughter to graduate from high school, Barker said.

A successor will be chosen in one to three months from among candidates on a national roster of qualified supervisory personnel.

County P&Z rejects land division requests

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Two land divisions were denied Thursday night by the Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning Commission for fear that they would set "a dangerous precedent for agricultural divisions."

The two landowners — Leslie Mal and Ralph Harris, both of Filer — purchased their properties just prior to the enactment of a 1979 zoning ordinance that requires 24-acre minimum lots in agricultural zones. Under the old law, Mal and Harris could have divided their lots without needing a conditional-use permit.

"We have hundreds of these situations throughout the county, and so, we'd better be careful in how we handle this request," said commission Chairman C.M. Lanting.

Despite their negative ruling, most commission members sympathized with Mal and Harris. They criticized the unnamed real-estate salesman who sold them the land for not informing them of the impending law change.

"When we bought the land, we believed we would be able to divide each parcel one more time," Mal told the commission. "Under the old law, I guess we could have, but now we can't."

Mal and Harris each bought two two-and-a-half-acre lots adjacent to the Filer cemetery. All four properties adjoin each other.

The two, who are brothers-in-law, want to divide each of the four lots in half so they can keep one lot each for their own homes and then sell the remaining six lots.

"There are no water rights, although farming is being done on about five acres but that will end this year," Mal said. "The rest has been allowed to just sit idle and weeds have grown up. People in the houses around us seem to like the idea of cleaning things up."

But the commission unanimously agreed that granting a zoning exception to Mal and Harris would leave the door open for more challenges. (The county's agricultural-protection zones. Instead, several board members suggested rezoning or subdivision planning to allow the land divisions without jeopardizing agricultural zones in other parts of the county.)

Commission member Jim Weaver moved to deny the request, but also to consider a zoning change that would allow Mal and Harris to divide their land.

Part of the property in question lies in a residential-agricultural zone where such a division is allowed, as long as the lots are at least one acre in size. But about half of the land is in a pure agricultural zone.

Weaver recommended, and the commission concurred, that the board consider a request for extending the residential-agricultural zone surrounding Filer to include the Mal and Harris property. In response, the two landowners submitted a formal request for such a zoning change.

Lanting said the case will be continued and probably will be discussed at the group's August meeting, following a committee examination of the property and a legal review of the proposed zoning change.

In other action, the commission granted a conditional-use permit to Blick Trucking Co. for construction of an 80-by-100-foot metal building and truck parking area on a butte one mile northeast of Castleford.

"The land is some of the worst in the county," said Filer, "would not be taking any farmland out of production," said the county zoning administrator, Ed Woods.

Blick Trucking is located "in Castleford." The commission also granted a conditional land division to Lee Martin, who wants to divide an 8.43-acre parcel one mile south of the Burley Corner at Buhl.

Motorcyclists rob trucker at rest stop

BURLEY — Two motorcycle-mounted thieves who robbed a truck driver Friday afternoon along Interstate 84 have eluded police so far.

According to the Cassia County sheriff's office:

Pete Chaney, 28, of East Prairie, Mo., pulled his semi into the west-bound rest area four miles east of the I-84 Salt Lake City interchange, at about 3 p.m. Friday, to change a fuel filter.

As Chaney was working on the truck, two dirt-bikers rode into the rest area. One of the men held a handgun to the back of his head, Chaney said, while the other took his wallet, removing the $780 that was in

The men ordered Chaney to yank into the rest area, and then rode off. The motorcyclists crossed the median and headed west, Chaney told sheriff's deputies. They had no license plates on their vehicles, he said.

Two men sentenced in sex-sale ripoff case

BURLEY — Two Portland men have pleaded guilty and been sentenced in Fifth District Court in Burley to charges of harboring a prostitute.

Along with two Portland women, the men were arrested June 24 after police investigated a robbery of two "johns" at a Burley motel.

Roy Brown, 50, and Amos Cruse, 24, were sentenced Wednesday to 60 days in jail and fined $11.50 on the charge, a misdemeanor. Magistrate Judge Nathan Higer also put each of the men on a one-year probation.

Higer then suspended 46 days of the jail sentence, and $300 of the fine, according to court officials. The men were given credit for the time they already had spent in the Cassia County Jail, and they were released this week, court officials said.

Brown and Cruse initially had been arraigned on two felony charges, but the charges were reduced because the prosecutor's office could not produce witnesses vital to the case, according to Al Barrus, the Cassia County prosecutor. He would not identify the witnesses, but he said the prosecution either had to reduce the charges or see them dismissed.

Barbara Tribbett and Glenda Moore, no ages given, pleaded guilty to prostitution charges on June 25. The women were sentenced to 30 days in jail and fined $300.

According to Burley police, the women had promised two unidentified men sexual favors at a Burley motel in return for $100 each, but Brown and Cruse reportedly appeared at the motel, threatened the men and left with the women and money.

Declo Day events today

DECLO — A community effort is behind today's Declo Day activities. The fun will begin at 7 a.m., with running and bicycle races, according to Lorna Gillette, the Declo Day committee president. Registration for the races will begin at 5:30 a.m. at Declo High School. There are several age categories.

Events then will move to Kiwanis Park for the rest of the day. A breakfast, sponsored by the Declo High School alumni committee, will be held from 7 to 9 a.m., followed by a parade, beginning at 10:30 a.m. in downtown Declo.

The parade's grand marshal is a long-time Declo resident, Joseph Gillett.

A Lion's Club barbecue will begin at 1 p.m. Children's races, skeet shooting, horseshoe-pitching, a pig scramble and a tug of war are among the activities scheduled at the park.

Free entertainment will be provided throughout the day. There also will be a pie-baking contest, with a $30 grand prize.

A slide presentation on the history of the city will be presented throughout the day, and local artists will show their work at an arts and crafts display in the park. An awards ceremony for the races that were held earlier will begin at 4 p.m.

This is the second year for the event, which was started in an effort to combine various church and service-group activities into one large community celebration, Gillette said.

Church groups vow to continue ERA fight

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI Religion writer

On June 30, as the long campaign to win ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment finally ended in failure, representatives of some 40 faith groups gathered at the National Archives for a "ritual of mourning, rebirth and empowerment."

In a dramatic ceremony, the 300 women, joined by a sprinkling of men, burned copies of the Equal Rights Amendment. The Rev. Gene Ravan, a candidate for governor of Idaho, will speak at the revival service scheduled for 7:30 p.m. this Wednesday through Friday and at the regularly scheduled services on Sunday.

Family Night activities will begin at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

women in this country," she said.

Indeed, while mourning marked part of the equal-rights movement's reaction to the death of the ERA, renewed commitment to the fight was a much more pervasive theme in response to the amendment's failure.

The failure of the states to ratify the amendment, said Claire Randall, the general secretary of the National Council of Churches, was "Incredible!" and marked the beginning of "a new era of denial of the Declaration of Independence and of the Judeo-Christian traditions and teachings that underlie it."

Randall, in an open letter to those associated with the NCC, said the churches and ecumenical agencies, such as the National Council of Churches, have special responsibilities in the struggle for women's rights.

"We in the churches and ecumenical bodies must assess whether we did all we could to support commitments to human rights in this cause," she said. "If we did not, let us repent and move to a new seriousness in our response. . . . Let us not expect mostly women to deal with this issue again, but let us — women and men together — work more seriously to bring about rights and equality for all people everywhere."

One of the major religious organizations that supported the ERA, the Religious Committee for the ERA, has signaled its commitment to the changed circumstances by changing its name to the Religious Network for Equality of Women.

"Our voices will be clearer and louder," said Sister Marjorie Tulte, the president of the Roman Catholic National Assembly of Women Religious. "The power is in renewed commitment. No one of us ever thought it would be easy."

Renew, as the new group is called, is a coalition of Protestant, Jewish and Catholic organizations and individuals.

"This change of name indicates a simple change in agenda, not intent," said Louise Bowman, the chairman of the group and a staff member of the Church of the Brethren

"Renew affirms our religious commitment to equality of women and men, not only in the eyes of God, but within our legal and political system," added Constance Kresholt, the president of the Jewish National Federation of Temple Sisterhoods. "To believe otherwise denies our Jewish mandate to accord dignity to each person."

And in Cambridge, Mass., 13 female Episcopal priests, all "irregularly" ordained in the mid-1970s and leaders of the movement to win ordination of women to the Episcopal priesthood, issued a statement, vowing "to do all in their power to name and exorcise the demon of sexism that has, to this day, blocked passage of the Equal Rights Amendment."

Christening of prince planned for Aug. 4

LONDON (UPI) — The royal baby, Prince William of Wales, will be christened at Buckingham Palace on Aug. 4, the queen mother's 82nd birthday.

The archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Robert Runcie, will perform the christening. Royal babies usually are christened in the Music Room overlooking the Buckingham Palace garden.

A Buckingham Palace spokesman said Prince Charles and Princess Diana have invited the entire royal family, the baby's six grandparents and an "enormous number of friends for the occasion."

The date coincides with the queen mother's birthday, but it was not specifically chosen because of that, the spokesman said.

Senator opposes sale of federal grazing land to private owners

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Most federal grazing lands in Idaho should not be sold into private ownership, Sen. Steve Symms says.

"A lot of those boys who are grazing on the land, can't afford to buy it," Symms said Friday during a Times-News interview. "Putting this land in private hands would also eliminate a lot of recreational access."

In recent weeks, several conservative groups, such as the Heritage Foundation, to which Symms spoke on June 21, have been advocating selling large tracts of grazing land to private landowners. Symms says he opposes selling such land, which constitutes most of the BLM land in the Magic Valley.

But the freshman Idaho senator does advocate selling small, publicly owned parcels such as one near the I-84 and Idaho 93 interchange in southern Jerome County.

"Small pieces of land that are either not very good for farming, like this freeway interchange, or are too isolated for good management, should be sold and placed on the public tax rolls," he says.

Symms, a Republican, counters charges that James Watt, the secretary of the Interior Department, is seeking to sell off more public land than any previous administration.

"To be honest, I was hoping there would be a little more willingness to sell off some of the surplus land, but that simply hasn't been the case, as I see it. According to the people I know over there (the Interior Department), it's basically a new attitude of, 'Let's better manage the land than we have been.'"

"You see that right here at the (BLM) district office," he says. "We're seeing more moderate land management and an effort to get away from being tied down by rules and regulations."

Symms says this policy change is due, in part, to pressure from the Sagebrush Rebellion of 1978-79. "The rebellion" is a competitive threat for better management," he says. "If the feds can't handle it, maybe the states can. But it's that pressure, and the possibility of losing some (federal) positions, that are making these officials look to more realistic management."

Symms says he advocates broad land use, allowing for both protection of some wildlife, while permitting mining and lumbering on a less strictly regulated basis.

"I've gone on record supporting the Sagebrush Rebellion and will continue to push in that direction."

Symms particularly advocates shifting all BLM land management to the state on a multi-year test basis.

"I say, leave the Forest Service alone for now, but I know damned well that the state of Idaho could manage the BLM grazing land a lot better than what's being done today," he says. "They (BLM officials) are simply shackled by too much red tape and regulation. We could cut that out if it were left to the state."

He also doesn't see the recent controversy over a yet-undisclosed list of the federal lands in Idaho that are being considered for sale as a major issue.

"I honestly don't know what's going on; but my intelligence tells me they (Washington officials) aren't releasing the list of lands because they don't have all of it yet. I've been told much of it is still resting at the district offices."

However, "once a master list is completed, it should be released to the public, he said."

"Once you have that big list, then you can start whittling away at the lands the people don't want to be sold until you end up with a list of lands for sale," he says. "I think we should have a long-term plan for selling surplus lands. Perhaps it should be a listing of lands coming up for release over the next 30 years or so."

He says this especially applies in Idaho "where two thirds of the state is owned by the government. That leaves us with a very narrow tax base, which is not good at all."

High loan rates stifle productivity economy needs

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A long track record of deficit spending is going to keep interest rates high and the economy stifled for several more months.

At least that's the prediction of Sen. Steve Symms, who is a member of the Senate's budget committee.

But the Idaho Republican acknowledges that his interpretation of the nation's economy is nothing new, and he believes that people must retain their patience during the fiscally hard times ahead.

"During our inflationary years, people in debt were benefiting from the declining dollar values," he says. "That's because they were able to pay off loans with money that wasn't worth as much as what they borrowed."

"Now, they're paying off debts with more valuable money, and that's making it tough on just about everybody. But things are going to turn around — you can bet on it."

The solution to the nation's struggling economy is more productivity, Symms says.

"But getting more business productivity is hard because of the high interest rates," he says.

"The solution is overhauling the entitlement programs, including Social Security. I'm not talking about taking money away from people who need it, but we need to change Social Security into a stable system."

"We can talk about cutting other entitlement programs, but since Social Security consumes about 85 percent of that budget, that's really where we have to look," he says.

On Thursday, Symms met with two Social Security recipients near Nampa, one of whom he describes as a worthy recipient, while the other he cites as an example of the abuse of the system.

"Bessie Dewey is an 89-year-old lady who lives totally on a $289 Social Security check each month," Symms says. "When someone tries to cut her benefits, or hold her check, that's not right."

"But earlier in the day, I met with a man who still works and pays into the Social Security system, yet he and his wife are drawing, tax-free, Social Security benefits that amount to almost $15,000 a year."

"My sources tell me there are about 260,000 millionaires drawing Social Security, and that's one area for reform we should consider right now."

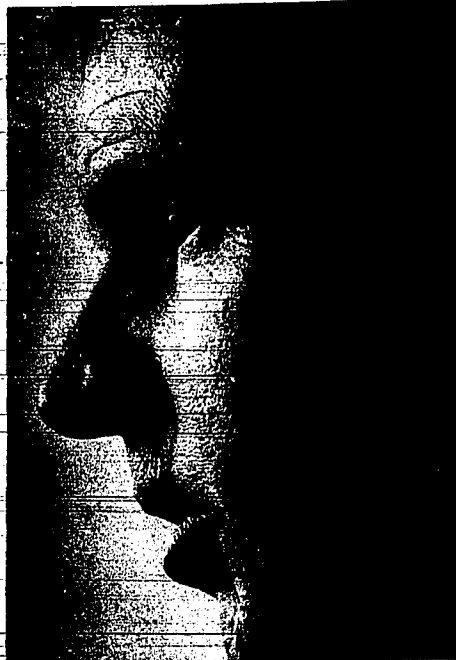

Symms insists the national mood toward Social Security is changing from demanding full retirement to simply expecting supplemental income.

"The Economic Recovery Act of 1981 encourages this, through various ways of setting up your own retirement plan without having to totally rely on Social Security," he says.

The senator claims that entitlement programs offer more room for budget cuts than does the military budget.

"I agree with the idea that we should tend to our home front before looking abroad with the military, but some people don't seem to realize that Reagan has allocated one half of his budget to social service, while only a fourth is going to the military."

The ultimate goal, Symms says, is to arrive at a balanced federal budget and free the country of deficit spending.

Wendell council protests charges on computer reprogramming bill

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

WENDELL — Questions about a bill to fund the new computer at Wendell City Hall must be answered before the city will pay the bill.

Jim Peterson of Superior Systems, a computer programming company that contracted to program the software for the computer that the city began using in January, explained his $360 charge to City Council on Thursday night.

"We programmed it the way we were told," he said. "Then, we were told there were some things that needed to be changed. When we had to re-do things we'd already done, we charged you for it."

Peterson said that the original information given to him was incomplete or incorrect, and it took nine hours to "rebuild" the program.

"It is not a simple thing," he said, comparing the process to building a home from the ground up.

The city also has about $30 in long-distance calls made by Peterson on his telephone bill.

However, Mayor Otto Lemke seemed disgusted with the bill. He said the original $5,000 fee for the programming should include all services until the system is operating correctly.

"It's not right," he said. "That seems like an ungodly price to me like we shouldn't have to pay for this thing until it's working."

After discussing the programming bill further, council requested that Peterson bring the information sheets that were provided to him by the former city clerk, Mary Wofford, to the next council meeting. Council then will review the exact charges Peterson had to make and decide whether to pay the bill or continue its protest.

In other business Thursday, Lemke said he and Councilmen Bob Thackeray, Marshall Howsen and Mike Wetzstein planned to go to Boise on July 20 to contest an unemployment claim made by a former city policeman, Ed Baer, who resigned last January.

Before the Idaho Industrial Commission, the mayor and the councilmen will represent Wendell against Baer or his attorney.

According to June Holmes, the city clerk, the commission will decide whether the city or Baer is to repay the approximately $700 that the former officer drew in unemployment benefits after his resignation.

Disappearing items spark theft report

TWIN FALLS — Thiefs reported to Twin Falls police this week included a $1,250 loss from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Magaw of 125 Buchanan St. Mrs. Magaw told police that a number of items have "just disappeared" from their home since the first of the year. The items include lawn furniture, camping equipment and a diamond ring, valued at $1,000. In a second theft under investigation, Mitchell Mead, 2019 Hillcrest Drive, said someone entered his home through an unlocked door between 1 and 3 a.m. Tuesday and took stereo equipment, valued at $200. Nothing else in the house was missing, he said.

MVSC individuals succeed, team struggles

By MARCUS PRATER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley Swim Club struggled to make a good showing as a team, but several of the team's members placed after the first day of the Twin Falls Invitational Swim Meet Friday.

The MVSC is well back of the leaders in two divisions. Pocastello's first-day total of 192 leads the B division, followed by Murray, Utah, with 169. The MVSC is in seventh place with 92 points. In the C division, Nampa holds a 71-65 lead over Boise, with the MVSC again in seventh place at 54.

A pair of Magic Valley relay teams were the only winners after the first day. The eight-and-under boys and the 13-14 girls took first in the medley relays, but MVSC Coach Barry Endo said his relay teams could be stronger.

"In Twin Falls not many people swim and we don't have the depth other teams do to fill in all of the relay spots, and some kids aren't here who should be — which doesn't help," Endo said.

The sister duo of 15-year-old Cindy and 14-year-old Pam O'Dell was a bright spot for the MVSC. Cindy stroked to a second-place finish in the 200 individual medley in the 15-18 age division while Pam also ended up second in the same event — this time the 13-14 division.

"I knew they (Cindy and Pam) would give us (MVSC) a good showing in most of the things they swim and I expect them to be strong tomorrow," Endo said.

Friday's events were the individual freestyle, breast stroke and the 50-yard freestyle while today's races will be the back stroke, butterfly and 100-yard freestyle.

Other local swimmers placing high were a fifth-place effort by Jimmy Horner in the eight-and-under boys' individual medley and Audra Urie's fifth place breaststroke finish in the 13-14 girls category.

Endo knew that his team would not place at the top, but cited reasons for that and some individual praise.

"The competition is tough. Utah has very strong swimmers and that is because they have the best swimming program," the first-year coach said. "Plus our kids are more specialized in what they do. We have a lot of freestylers but not many breast stroke swimmers while the other teams have kids that can do it all."

The point totals for the top eight teams after one day of competition:

B — 1. Pocastello 192, 2. Murray, Utah, 169, 3. Pirates 161, 4. Ray, Utah, 151, 5. Kearns 147, 6. Nampa 131, 7. Magic Valley, 92, 8. Greater Ogden, Utah, 60.

C — 1. Nampa 71, 2. Boise 65, 3. Greater Ogden, Utah, 62, 4. Ray, Utah, 56, 5. Rock Spoken, Wyo, 51, 6. Pocastello 54, 7. Magic Valley 54, 8. Pirates 51.

Golf
Masingill leads state with 68

CALDWELL (UPI) — Three-time champion Scott Masingill shaved three strokes off-par Friday for a first-round lead in the Idaho State Amateur Golf Championship at Caldwell's Purple Sage Golf Course.

Masingill's total of 68, which included a chip-in eagle at the par-5 18th, was one stroke better than two Boise golfers, Rich Hutchins and John Schoonover.

Blackfoot's Steve Hays and Weiser's Mike Sweet were two strokes off the pace with 70-under-par 70.

But the best round of the day was fashioned by Chris Inglis, a 9-handicapper in the second flight who used only 21 putts to record his 5-under-par 66. Because Inglis doesn't compete in the championship flight, he's ineligible for the championship title.

Play was scheduled to resume today and Sunday in the 54-hole tournament.

Other flight leaders included: On-18's Pat McGowan, who had 77 in the first flight; Harmon Johnson, Nampa, with a 75 in the third flight; and David Peterson, Nampa, whose 77 topped the fourth flight.

Masingill's Pacyette, twice saved par with difficult punch shots out of the tree line alongside Purple Sage's fairways and had matching 9-hole scores of 34. That's one under par on the front side and two under on the back.

Hutchins was two under par at the turn and matched par on the back for his 79. Schoonover followed that pattern for his score as well.

Defending champion Malling, Pocastello, who won the championship title twice before, sprayed the ball through most of the first round and was at 2-over-par 73.

Pair tied at Milwaukee

FRANKLIN, Wis. (UPI) — Rookie Dick "Disco" Zokol, continuing to be aided by the sounds of his portable radio, and resurgent veteran Terry Diehl both shot 3-under-par 68s Friday to tie for the lead after two rounds of the $200,000 Greater Milwaukee Open.

The pair, co-leaders with three others at 7-under after the first day, had 10-under totals of 134 over the 7,040-yard Tuckaway Country Club course. Scott Simpson, another first-day leader, shot a 3-under 70 and was one stroke back of the leaders.

Four golfers were two strokes back at 8-under, including Calvin Peete, the 1979 GMA champion, and Jim Colbert, who won it in 1972. Peete shot the low round of the day, a 6-under-par 66, while Colbert carried a 69. Mark Lye, shot a 67 and Wayne Levi 68 to join the former champions at 138.

David Edwards, another first-round leader, shot an even-par 72 and was three strokes off the pace while Jay Cuid, another first-day leader, fired a 7-over 73 and was four shots back.

The 23-year-old Zokol, the reigning Canadian Amateur champion, startled fans and fellow golfers Thursday by wearing a headset and listening to soft rock music between shots. Despite picking up the nickname "Disco" from his cohorts, Zokol did it again Friday, saying that the music calmed him down.

"I think it's very important," he said of the music. "I convinced myself even more today. I was very relaxed out there, very relaxed."

Decker Tabb sets world mark for women's mile

PARIS (UPI) — Mary Decker Tabb of the U.S. set a world record for women in the mile Friday at the Paris International Track Meet, blazing to a time of 4 minutes, 18.08 seconds.

Decker's time chopped nearly three seconds off the outdoor record of 4:20.48 — recorded by — Ludmilla Vessilkova of the Soviet Union last year. During the indoor season this year, Decker ran a 4:20.5 mile which at the time was the best indoors or outdoors.

Decker, who competes for the Athletics West track club in America, ran largely unchallenged during the race. The second-place finisher, Mac Roberts of Canada, was timed in 4:31.08.

In other events, British running star Steve Ovett abandoned the 1,500-meter race because of stomach pains while trying to break his own world record of 3:31.36.

In the men's 10,000 meters, Portugal's Fernando Mamede clocked 27:22.96 for a European record to beat Alberto Salazar of the U.S.

The racers burst forth in the 10,000 with a flash of speed, leading spectators to believe they would witness a second world record. Salazar, the world marathon record-holder, and Mamede crossed the halfway mark 5.5 seconds faster than Henry Rono's world-record pace of 1978 when he finished in 27:22.4.

But they were unable to keep up the pace, and by 9,000 meters they were three seconds behind Rono's time. At the end of the race Mamede picked up speed to win.

Salazar finished second in 27:29.06, and Steve Jones of Britain finished third in 28:03.74. Rono, who was anxious to reassert himself, finished a disappointing 11th in 29:07.30.

Mike Bolt of Kenya was the winner in the men's 1,500 in 3:38.38 following the withdrawal of Ovett with stomach pains. Ovett, quitting after 1,100 meters, staggered over to the inner grass field of the track and lay down for 10 minutes. Later he was taken to a hospital where he was put under observation.

Doctors speculated that he was suffering from appendicitis or acute gastritis.

Finishing second in the 1,500 was Irishman Ray Flynn in 3:37.76. Alex Gonzalez of France finished third, 12 seconds back.

The men's 200-meter relay team of Jamaican Don Quarrie and Americans Jeff Phillips, Walter McCoy and Mel Lattany ran to victory in 1:21.18.

France's Thierry Vigneron took first place in the pole vault, jumping 18 feet, 4 1/2 inches. In second place was Poland's Tadeusz Slusarski, who made it over at 18-2 1/2. American Earl Bell was third at 18-1 1/2.

2 of Leonard's would-be successors fight today

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — The top aspirants to Sugar Ray Leonard's world welterweight title, Roger Stafford and Milton McCrory, square off in a 10-round bout today, with the champion watching from ringside.

The winner of the match is expected to get a title fight with Leonard if he resumes his career after eye surgery last May. If Leonard should retire, the winner would be in line for the vacant title.

Stafford, the No. 1 ranked challenger with a 19-2-1 record, had a shot at the title when Leonard had to withdraw from their May 14 bout in Buffalo, N.Y., because of a detached retina.

Stafford, a graduate of the U.S. Marines boxing program, is confident of beating the No. 2-ranked McCrory and even predicted a knockout even though he had had only eight in his 22 fights.

"Once I wasn't going to predict anything because I'm not a knockout puncher as my record indicates," Stafford said. "But now I'm going to predict a knockout. I'm going to knock Milton McCrory out. It'll probably go four or five rounds."

Stafford noted that at 5-foot-9, he is four inches shorter than McCrory. He's also seven years older.

"I've got to put the pressure on," he said. "That's definitely what I'm going to do, because of his height advantage and his reach span."

McCrory indicated he was aware of Stafford's strategy.

"I have no plans except to stay away from the guy," he said. "I want to stay away and use my height. But I hope to win by a knockout and I really hope to do it before the sixth round."

McCrory, 20, is a product of Emanuel Steward's Kronk Gym in Detroit and has been sparring with former World Boxing Association welterweight champion — Thomas Hearns, who last his title fight to Leonard last year.

McEnroe wins, Teltscher loses

U.S., Sweden even in Davis Cup

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Mats Wilander evened the Davis Cup quarterfinal series between the United States and Sweden Friday night by beating stubborn American Eliot Teltscher 6-4, 7-5, 3-6, 3-6, 6-0.

The victory evened the best-of-5 series at one win each going into today's doubles match. The remaining two singles matches will be played Sunday.

John McEnroe had put the U.S. ahead with a 10-8, 6-3, 6-1 victory over Anders Jarryd in the first singles match.

The 17-year-old Wilander, the youngest member of either team, kept up a relentless series of shots from the baseline as he took a two-set lead over Teltscher, the sixth-ranked player in the world. He displayed the selection that won him the French Open title and led observers to call him "the next Bjorn Borg."

But Teltscher fought back to even the match and force a fifth set. In that set, Wilander broke Teltscher's serve three times to average a 6-3, 6-0 loss to Teltscher in the pair's only previous meeting in May.

The key game of the set was the fourth, when Teltscher, trailing three games to none, had three chances to win the game before Wilander broke his service on a shot that Teltscher thought was long. Wilander, the 12th-ranked player in the world, had fought off six set points in the third set before Teltscher finally won on a lob that Wilander reached but knocked wide.

McEnroe, playing his first match since losing to Jimmy Connors in the Wimbledon final Sunday, survived a tough first set before breezing to the win, his eighth straight in Davis Cup singles competition.

McEnroe blew a 5-1 lead in the opening set but recovered to save two break points with aces in the 17th game and won the set by breaking Jarryd's serve for the third time.

"I relaxed in the first set and then I lost my rhythm and I couldn't get it back where I wanted it," McEnroe said.

McEnroe, facing Jarryd for the first time in his career, broke Jarryd's serve again in the second game of the second set and went on to win the set in route to the straight-set victory.

McEnroe broke Jarryd's serve in the first game of the final set and lost only two points on his service in the set before breaking Jarryd again in the final game to win the match.

"It was not one of my better matches," McEnroe said. "It was an up-and-down match. The guy played better than I expected. It's tough to come back, and your mind kind of wanders a lot more than it should. I can't continue to play like that. That's not very good at all."

McEnroe, who raised his singles record in Davis Cup competition to 21-3, will team with Peter Fleming in the doubles competition Saturday against the team of Jarryd and Hans Simonsson.

Jarryd, at 20 the oldest member of the Swedish team that is without five-time Wimbledon champion Bjorn Borg, was not immediately available to comment after the match at the Checkerdome.

"He served better than I thought he would," McEnroe said. "I lost most of my concentration and I was angry at myself because I was not hitting the ball well. I was inconsistent and I was rushing it. He was attacking at the end more than I was and that's not the way it should have been at all."

McEnroe served 13 aces in the match to just three for Jarryd, the 53rd-ranked singles player in the world.

Cards gain ground on East division foes by edging Astros

By United Press International

With three contenders in the East losing games Friday night, the St. Louis Cardinals made the most of a chance to improve their standing.

George Hendrick hit his 13th homer and Keith Hernandez singled home the winning run in the sixth inning to give the Cardinals a 3-2 victory over the Astros at Houston.

The Cards lead the division by two games.

The Cardinals snapped a 1-1 tie with a pair of runs in the sixth. Tommy Her singled and scored on Willie McGee's triple. Hernandez then pushed a single through a drawn-in infield to knock in what proved to be the winning run.

St. Louis took a 1-0 lead in the second as Hendrick homered off Nolan Ryan, 8-9, but the Astros tied it at 1-1 in their half of the fourth when Phil Garner walked, stole second and scored on Art Howe's two-out RBI single to right.

The Astros closed to within 3-2 in their half of the sixth. Back-to-back singles by Ray Knight and Jose Cruz put runners on first and third with one out and Garner drove Knight home with a sacrifice fly to right.

Despite suffering the loss, Ryan struck out 10, marking the sixth time this season and the 141st time in his career that he has fanned 10 or more batters in a game.

Dodgers 6, Phillies 4 (11)
At Philadelphia, Ron Roenicke, a .117 hitter, doubled home two runs with two out in the fifth to lead the Dodgers. Pedro Guerrero singled and one out later, stole second. Steve Yeager was walked intentionally but Roenicke hit the first pitch from loser Tug McGraw into the left-center field alley.

Braves 6, Pirates 4
At Atlanta, Larry Whitson laced a two-run single to cap a three-run fifth that carried the Braves. With Pittsburgh leading 4-3 in the fifth, Atlanta scored three runs off loser Rick Rhoden.

Giants 3, Expos 2
At Montreal, Joe Morgan and Jack Clark cracked sixth-inning home runs and Alton Hershiser and three relievers combined on a six-hitter for the Giants. With Montreal leading 1-0, Morgan opened the sixth with his sixth home run of the season, a shot over the right-field wall off Steve Rogers.

Cubs 12, Reds 0
At Chicago, Gary Woods and Jerry

Morales each drove in three runs and 38-year-old right-hander Ferguson Jenkins hurled his first shutout in nearly three years—Jenkins, in earning his 48th career shutout, scattered five hits, walked two and struck out seven.

Mets 3-5, Padres 6-3
At New York, Dave Kingman's 20th homer, a two-run shot in the seventh, snapped a tie and enabled the Mets to break a seven-game losing streak. In the opener, Terry Kennedy drove in two runs, including the tie-breaker in the seventh.

1st non-caesarian birth in U.S.

Wife of O's Flanagan has test-tube baby

BALTIMORE (UPI)—The wife of Baltimore Orioles pitcher Mike Flanagan Friday gave birth to the nation's first test-tube baby to be delivered by non-caesarian methods, a healthy 8-pound, 8-ounce girl.

Dr. William Englehart, the Flanagan's personal physician, said Kathy Flanagan, 30, had a "perfectly normal pregnancy." But he said the conception "was an amazing thing."

Flanagan, who was the American League's 1979 Cy Young Award winner, was in Seattle with the Orioles when his wife went into labor at the Greater Baltimore Medical Center about 8 a.m. But the left-handed hurler arrived in Baltimore in time to be with his wife in the delivery room when the baby was born at 4:53 p.m.

"Things went very normally and as a result she had a normal delivery," Englehart said of Mrs. Flanagan, who was previously unable to bear children because of obstetrical problems.

"The Flanagans were terribly excited," Englehart said. "I couldn't happen to a more deserving couple."

The baby was conceived by the in vitro fertilization method, in which an ovum or an egg is fertilized by sperm in a laboratory dish and returned to the woman's uterus.

Mrs. Flanagan was a patient of Drs. Howard and Georgeanna Jones of the Eastern Virginia Medical School in Norfolk, Va.—the nation's first test-tube baby clinic.

Texas takes two from woeful Tigers

By United Press International

The Detroit Tigers, who roared through the second half of last year's split season, have lately been whimpering like wounded pussycats.

Billy Sample drove in two runs with a third-inning single and a sixth-inning home run Friday night to help the Texas Rangers complete a double-header sweep of the Tigers with a 3-1 victory in the nightcap at Arlington, Texas.

In the first game, Buddy Bell hit a two-run homer with one out in the ninth to give the Rangers a come-from-behind 5-2 victory.

With the two losses, the Tigers have now dropped 21 of their last 27 games.

In the second game, George Wright led off the third inning with a single and went to second on a sacrifice. One out later, Sample singled to left to score Wright for a 1-0 lead.

Sample led off the sixth by smacking a 1-and-0 pitch from Larry Paschke, 1-3, to deep left field for his seventh home run of the season and a 2-0 lead. Doc Medich, 7-7, got the win with relief help from Dave Schmidt.

Mike Richardson's RBI single in the eighth increased Texas' lead to 3-0.

Brewers 9, Royals 6
At Milwaukee, two-run doubles by Cecil Cooper and Gorriun Thomas highlighted a seven-run fourth inning that lifted the Brewers and Mike Caldwell, 6-8. Rolfe Fingers came on to notch his 17th save.

Twins 7, White Sox 6
At Boston, Frank Viola, 3-0, tossed a six-hitter and Tom Brunansky and Randy Johnson drove in fourth-inning runs to lead the Twins to their sixth win in the last seven games.

At Toronto, Ernie Whitt cracked a two-run homer and Al Woods drove in two runs with a double and a home run to help the Blue Jays.

Angels 4, Yankees 1
At Anaheim, Geoff Zahn tossed a two-hitter for his 10th victory of the season and Don Baylor's leadoff homer sparked a three-run second inning that carried the Angels.

Indians 7, Mariners 4
At Seattle, Larry Milbourne and Chris Bando belted two-run homers in the fourth inning to lead the Indians.

THE ACES® BOBBY WOLFF

"Often a retrospect delights the mind." Dante Alighieri

Many declarers will fail their first test at today's tender slam. Given a second chance, retrospect will delight the mind and declarer will find his 12 tricks.

Declarer wins dummy's diamond ace and draws trumps. How should he play the clubs to avoid two club losers? He may have already missed his best chance; however, he has a shot if West is a stinky defender. Declarer cashes all the tops in his red suits and then leads the ace and another club. If by this time West still has his club king, he wins that, but that's all the defenders get. West must offer a ruff and discard and declarer gets the gift of slam.

When declarer shows West that he has no losers outside the club suit, West should have an easy play. Under declarer's club ace, West throws the club king and now East will score two club tricks.

How to make life more difficult for West. Attack two, before drawing trumps, or eliminating the red suits, declarer should lead a club to his ace. Now if West finds the jetson-play of his club king, he has really made a fine play.

Most of us will make this slam on our second try. The only difference between the
